Symphony Hall may be quiet over the summer months, but that doesn't mean the music has gone away. Chamber music takes center stage when the weather gets warm, but there is much to hear in orchestral performances and in opera as well.

his wife, soprano Kristine Opolais, in the title role (Aug. 20).

Pianists visiting the Shed or Ozawa Hall this summer include Jonathan Biss (July 29), Daniil Trifonov (Aug. 6), Emmanuel Ax (Aug. 12), Garrick Ohlsson (Aug. 23), and Jeremy Denk (Aug. 24). Yo-Yo Ma performs twice, with the Silk Road Ensemble on Aug. 7, and with the orchestra on Aug. 27. Renée Fleming sings Strauss's "Four Last Songs" on July 16.

This year's Festival of Contemporary Music (July 21-25) was curated by composer Steven Stucky, who sadly passed away in February. His chamber concerto will be the highlight of the opening concert. The annual Leonard Bernstein memorial concert, an all-Brahms program, will be July 31, and the spectacular Tanglewood on Parade, featuring the Pops, the BSO and the Tanglewood Music Center orchestras, will be Aug. 2.

Co-directors Jon Manasse and Jon Nakamatsu celebrate their tenth anniversary at the Cape Cod Chamber Music Festival (www.capecodchambermusic.org), and the duo has done wonders bringing top-notch artists to the festival's six diverse venues. This year's line-up begins with an opening night appearance by the Curtis on Tour musicians (July 29) in Wellfleet. The Escher quartet takes residency Aug. 22 through 26, and the Emerson (Aug. 4, Wellfleet), Harlem (Aug. 6, Cotuit), and Borromeo (Aug. 19, Wellfleet) quartets also perform. Former director Brian Zeger appears with Imani Winds on programs Aug. 1 and 2.

Meeting House Chamber Music (www.meetinghousemusic.org), now in its 42nd year, runs June 19 through July 25, mostly on Mondays, at several Cape Cod locations. Pianist/founder/director Donald Enos leads the way; guests this summer include cellist Amit Peled and violinist Irina Muresanu.
